

Platform Guidelines

1. How to Submit

This is the partner's platform, not Chemin's. You work on it independently, using your own account shared by Chemin.

The platform operates on a first-come, first-served basis. As a result, each category and subcategory has a limited quota, so some may become unavailable once their quota is filled.

Platform link: emailcollection.consultbae.com. Desktop only. Mobile cannot export .eml files. Your PM gives you login credentials directly. You do not sign a contract or create your own account.

1. Log in at the platform link above using the credentials your PM gave you.
2. A Contributor Agreement form will appear. Please read it carefully and enter the Annotator ID provided by your PM in the full name field, then accept to proceed.

3. On the Upload tab, pick your slot: choose the Category, choose the Subcategory, and enter the sender's business domain.
4. Click Check Availability. If the slot is open, the upload step unlocks. If it isn't, a message tells you right away. Just pick a different domain or subcategory and try again.

5. Drop in the .eml file. The platform reads the sender, subject, and date straight from the file. You don't type any of that in.
6. Track every submission under My Submissions.

Upload an email

Pick the slot first, then drop the .eml. We pull sender, subject and date from the file — you don't type any of that.

1 Pick the slot

Category: Select a category

Subcategory: Choose a category first

Domain: example.com

Business domain only. We match this against the sender's domain in the .eml (subdomains of the same base are fine).

Check availability Fill all three fields, then check.

2 Upload the .eml file

Check availability above first, then this step unlocks.

Go to Settings

The Upload tab: pick Category, Subcategory, and Domain, then Check Availability.

7. Finally, log the task details in the working sheet by filling in the Annotator Name, Task ID, Category, and Subcategory.

Checking slots

You don't have to check availability first. Two ways work equally well: open Browse Slots to see what's open before you start, or skip straight to Upload and let Check Availability tell you on the spot. Neither is required. Use whichever is faster for you.

If a slot isn't open, Check Availability tells you immediately. Pick a different domain or subcategory.

Two things to watch for

- Don't switch tabs or apps mid-upload. Changing tabs reverts everything you've entered. Fill in the slot, check availability, and upload the file in one go.
- There is no bulk upload. Every .eml file is uploaded one at a time.
- Category and subcategory availability can differ depending on your assigned language. Some collectors may not see every category in their dropdown. Go by what's shown in your own account, not what someone else sees in theirs.

Tracking your status

Your dashboard shows five counts for every submission:

Your dashboard: live counts for every stage of your submissions.

- Submitted: received by the platform.
- Internal QC Passed: passed the platform's automated checks, eligible for delivery.
- Delivered: handed off in a delivery batch.
- Client QC Passed: accepted. This is what counts toward your payment.
- Client QC Failed: rejected. Needs a replacement submission. Not eligible for pay.

How to export a .eml file

- Gmail (Web): open the email, click the three-dot menu, then Download message.

- Outlook (Desktop): drag the email to a folder on your computer, or use File then Save As.
- Outlook (Web): open the email, three-dot menu, More actions, then View message source, and save.
- Other clients (Thunderbird, Yahoo, and others): look for Save As, Export, or Download.

2. Quotas and Rejection Logic

Quotas

- Each sender domain has a project-wide cap of 400 emails. Once a domain (e.g. shopee.com, grab.com or traveloka.com) hits 400, no one can submit from it again.
- You personally can upload up to 5 files per sender domain per subcategory.
- Slots are first come, first served. Check Browse Slots before you upload if you want certainty.

- A good email can still be rejected if the domain or slot is already full when you upload. This is not a quality problem, it is a timing problem.

Why submissions get rejected

- The sender is a personal provider, not a business.
- The subject line does not have enough words in your language.
- The email is forwarded, replied to, or dated before 1 March 2023.
- The subject line duplicates one already in the database.
- The domain or slot has already reached its cap.
- The file is fabricated, edited, pre-redacted, AI-generated, or machine-translated.
- The Subcategory clearly does not match the email.

Note: if the system thinks your email fits a different subcategory, it may auto-correct and move it there instead of rejecting it. This is a guardrail, not a penalty. Still pick the subcategory you believe is correct at upload time.

3. Payment

- You are paid $0.17 for every email that reaches Accepted status.
- Rejected emails are not paid. You can always submit a replacement.
- You need 30 approved emails to reach the $5 minimum payout.
- If you do not reach $5 by the end of this project, your balance carries over. See the FAQ below for how this works.

4. Rules You Must Follow

- Submit only genuine emails you personally received. Never create, fake, or send an email to yourself to submit it.
- Do not use AI tools or translation tools to create or translate a submission.
- Only submit emails you have access to and consent to share. Do not use someone else's inbox.

- Do not modify or pre-redact any file. Upload exactly what your inbox exports.
- Do not share the platform link, your Participant ID, this guide, or any project detail outside the project.

Privacy note: you upload the full email to the platform, including the body. The platform's team redacts it after upload. Only the subject line and the sender's email address are sent onward. The body is never passed on.
